Reasons for Allowance

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

None of the prior art made of record teaches or suggests a method of image processing comprising the steps of:

selecting pages of image to identify selected pages;

combining the selected pages of the image into a single overlapping image;

displaying the single overlapping image;

selecting a portion of the single overlapping image to specify a selected portion while the single overlapping image is being displayed;

selecting a process to be performed on the selected portion;

simultaneously image processing the selected portion of each of the pages of the image based upon the selected process while the single the single overlapping image is being displayed to generate image processed pages of the image; and outputting separately each of the image processed pages of the image.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

-The closest prior art, Horiuchi (6,470,100) discloses (Figs. 2 and 5) an image composition processing apparatus that generates a composed image, which is a superposition of a plurality of image layers and displays it within a window of the screen. A GUI image generating part (32) displays a window for each image layer as shown in Figs. 5(A) and (B), displays the area of each image layer to be cut out as an area constituting a composed image in a reduced size, and further displays an image indicating a process effected to each image layer in the periphery of the window. However, Horiuchi fails to disclose the steps of "selecting a portion of the single overlapping image to specify a selected portion while the single overlapping image is being displayed, and simultaneously image processing the selected portion of each of the pages of the image based upon the selected process while the single overlapping image is being displayed to generate image processed pages of the image; and outputting separately each of the image processed pages of the image."

-Brunner et al (US 2002/0093516) discloses (Figs. 1-3) an image processing apparatus that combines a plurality of image layers (103) into a single composed image (204). Each window is represented as one or more layers, as shown in Fig. 2. Color and alpha values associated with a window are composited for the overlapping tiles. However, Horiuchi fails to disclose the steps of "selecting a portion of the single overlapping image to specify a selected portion while the single overlapping image is being displayed, and simultaneously image processing the selected portion of each of the pages of the image based upon the selected process while the single overlapping image is being displayed to generate image processed pages of the image; and outputting separately each of the image processed pages of the image."

-Higurashi (6,393,162) discloses an image synthesizing apparatus that synthesizes a plurality of images obtained by photographing one subject (one composition) to have overlap portions so as to form one image and capable of appropriately calculating angles of view from the overlap portions of adjacent image. However, Horiuchi fails to disclose the steps of "selecting a portion of the single overlapping image to specify a selected portion while the single overlapping image is being displayed, and simultaneously image processing the selected portion of each of the pages of the image based upon the selected process while the single overlapping image is being displayed to generate image processed pages of the image; and outputting separately each of the image processed pages of the image."

-Wellner (5,511,148) discloses (Fig. 6) a system for generating new documents from originals containing text and/or images. Figs. 6(a) to (f) show successive scenes of the desk surface in a copying operation.

-Halliday et al (5,880,740) discloses (Figs. 1-6) a system for manipulating graphical composite image composed of elements selected by user from sequentially displayed members of stored image sets.

-Burt et al (5,999,662) disclose a system for automatically generating a mosaic from a plurality of input images. The system sequentially executed an image alignment process, an editing process, and a combining process such that, from a sequence of images, the system automatically produces a seamless mosaic for various applications.

-Blank (5,687,306) discloses (Fig. 4) a system and method for editing digital images in three dimensions includes a computer for storing a digital image of an object and a background.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
